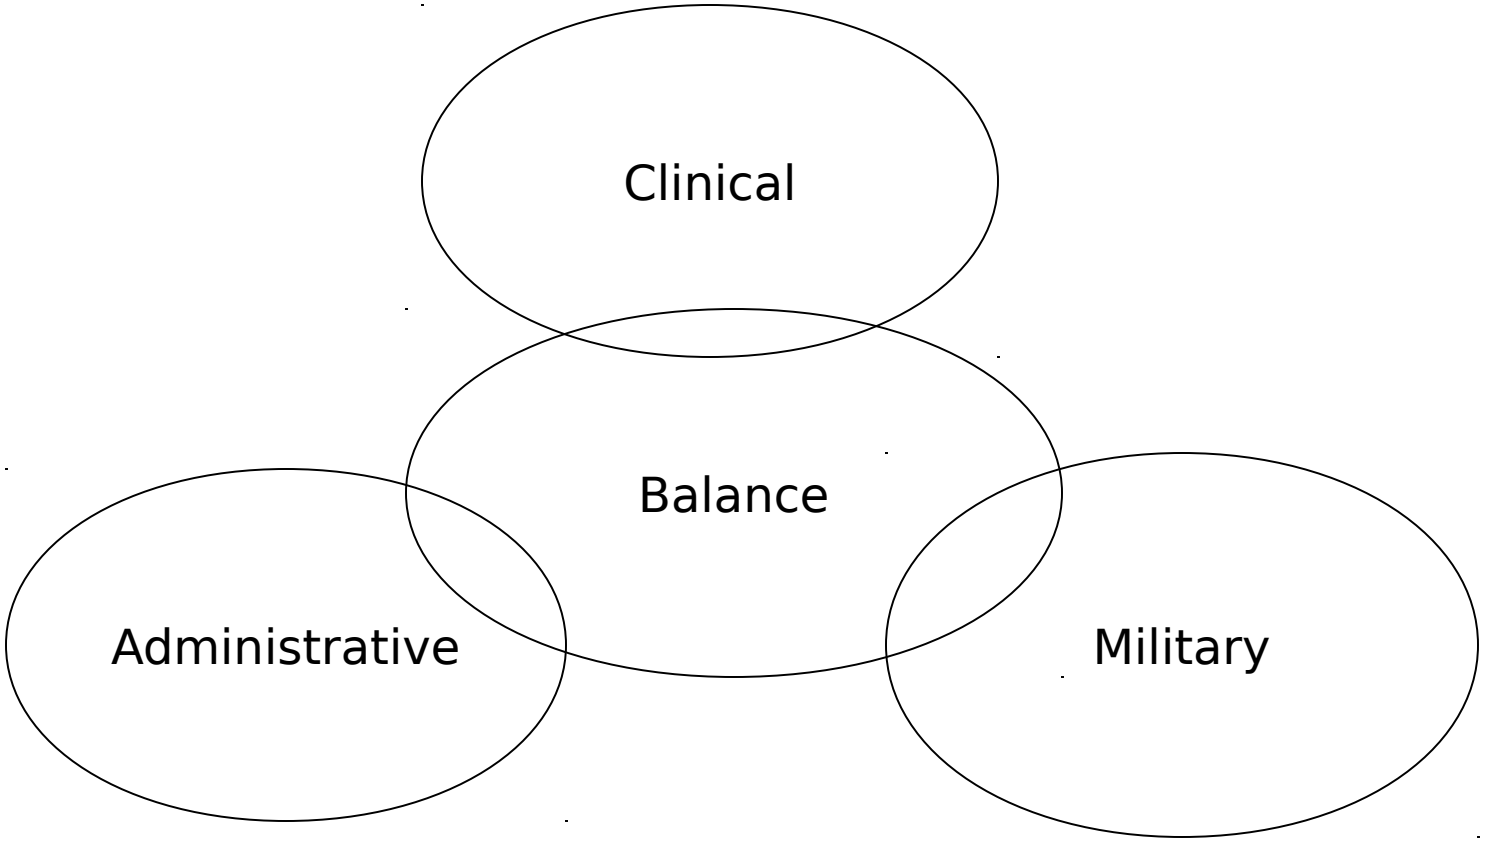
Balancing Clinical, Administrative, & Military Responsibilities

Group 9

How do we find a balance that promotes clinical skills, leadership, and military skills?



Defining Responsibilities:

- Clinical: patient care, competencies, readiness planning, clinical skill proficiency
- Administrative: rater responsibilities, assigned unit duties, QA/PI, accreditation.
- Military: deployments, APFT, PME, Officer call, Officership.

It’s All A Balancing Act:

- Effective leadership
  - Communication
- Prioritize
  - Mission requirements, Time management
- Organize
  - Computer Based Training, training schedules
- Network
  - Seeking advice from mentors and peers

It’s All A Balancing Act: Part II

- Delegate
  - Rotate duties
  - Develop Jr. enlisted/officers
- Initiative
- Flexibility – multi-tasking
- Personal Accountability

Opportunities for Civilian Education and Military Training?

- BLUF - Yes, Dependant on…
  - Mission requirements, Leadership styles
  - Training Funds $$$$
  - Personal Preference

Keeping a Focus on Preparedness:

- Culture Development – personal responsibilities, continual reinforcement at all leadership levels
- Personal Investment- active involvement in planning
- Organizational – mock drills, unit inspections/audits, published training calendars
- Consequences as appropriate